INVESTMENT STRATEGY

The Fund seeks to generate superior long-term capital appreciation through a focused portfolio of companies that Spears Abacus Advisors LLC (the "Advisor") believes to have dynamic businesses with leading and defensible market positions.

The Advisor conducts proprietary fundamental research to develop an understanding of a business and its position within its industry. The Advisor creates financial models that consider multiple scenarios, including a reasonable worst case scenario.

Fund holdings are continuously monitored to ensure that the initial rationale for investment remains. If it is determined that the initial reason for investment is no longer valid, the Advisor may sell the holding. A Fund holding may also be sold if the valuation exceeds a target, if valuation appears inconsistent with industry comparables or if other investments with higher expected returns become available.

The Fund is subject to various forms of risk, including the possible loss of principal. Investing in foreign securities entails risks not associated with domestic equities, including economic and political instability and currency fluctuations. Investing in fixed income securities includes the risk that rising interest rates will cause a decline in values. Concentration in particular industries or market sectors can cause increased volatility and market risk than more broadly diversified investments. Investments in securities of small- and mid-capitalization companies involve the possibility of greater volatility than investments in larger capitalization companies. Investments in American Depository Receipt involve many of the same risks as investing in foreign securities. Please see the prospectus for a more detailed explanation of these risks.

The BeeHive Fund is distributed by Foreside Fund Services, LLC.

COMMENTARY – 2nd Quarter 2017

The eerie stability of stock prices that we noted in April continued in the second quarter. Once again, there were only two trading days when the S&P 500 moved more than 1%. Common measures of volatility achieved multi-year lows. Every sector exhibited positive returns with the exception of energy, which followed the falling prices of crude oil and natural gas (10% and 5% respectively). Fortunately, the Fund has only a small position in Schlumberger, which had little impact on performance.

On the other hand we had meaningful positive contributions from both high and low tech. One-time laggard, Oracle (enterprise software) and Ball Corp (aluminum cans and bottles) were significant outperformers. Financials, led by Citigroup and CIT Group, rebounded from a subpar first quarter. A relatively new position in Nestlé has provided immediate returns. Shortly before the company announced the stock buyback, activist investor Third Point Capital disclosed that it had amassed a $3.5 billion position and is working closely with management to enhance the stock price. Other standouts in the quarter included Whirlpool, Delta Airlines and Alphabet.

The global economy is made up of complex organisms. As is always the case, there are many countervailing forces at play. Optimism in Europe is balanced by emerging concerns about the U.S. The yield curve has flattened, which historically has been a warning sign of a slowing economy, predicting five out of the last seven recessions. But, our sense is that the bond market is not currently a harbinger of troubled times ahead. We think there is likely a different explanation for the modest decline in longer term rates. Demand from global investors is likely to keep a lid on longer term rates, even as the Fed moves farther away from the zero interest-rate policy in place since the financial crisis.

For the foreseeable future, it seems likely that relatively easy credit will enable strategic and financial buyers to finance large-scale stock purchases with debt. For now, this should continue to provide an important source of demand for equities. We cannot say for sure how long it will take to reach an interest-rate inflection point, but when it does come, the transition may not be a gentle one. The preternaturally smooth market activity is likely to give way to above-average daily volatility. In case that environment comes sooner rather than later, we continue to hold larger than usual cash reserves.

In 2007, Abacus leaders Frank Weil and Rob Raich partnered with veteran investment manager Bill Spears to found Spears Abacus Advisors.
